Anti-Ligature Training Webinar Guidance Notes

Thank you for your interest in our Anti-Ligature Training Webinar.

According to OFCOM 66% of adults now own a smartphone in the UK which why we think that using in-app webinar software to deliver training is one of the next steps forward for health and social care training.

Webinar training is a cross-over between classroom instructor-led training and traditional e-learning.

Students benefit from having a 'live instructor' presenting the webinar that they can ask questions to and seek clarification from, without having to travel long distances or take too much time away from work.

A lot of our clients tell us that they sometimes struggle when they only have one or two people to get trained or when they are located too far away from each other to come together and form a larger group.

We think this solution will really help.
